

Tamia Thomas

I am a Croydon resident and mother of a student who has been at CACFO UK Education Centre for nearly 12 months.

The Centre has served my son as a student, and supported me as a parent, well.

I am a Parent Governor because I want to help the Centre continue to deliver a solid education for children like my son who, for whatever reason, find themselves outside of mainstream schooling. In particular, I want to be involved in helping it to help our children overcome the behavioural issues that they display.

I have two young children and so understand the education system very well from a parent's perspective. I also understand the challenges presented by some of our children. This leaves me well placed to accurately represent parental experiences and needs on CACFO UK's Education Centre's Governing Body regarding issues pertaining to exclusion and reintegration back into mainstream education.
